General Information about Crete

Domes Noruz Chania

Geography Crete is the largest greek island, and one of the most southerly areas of Greece; in fact it is closer to the African coast than it is to the Greek mainland! A mountainous island, it lies south of the Aegean Sea, a link between Europe, Africa and Asia. It covers 8,335km² with 1.100 km of coastline.

Crete is one of the most prosperous areas in Greece due to its geographical location, climate, diverse natural beauty as well as its unique cultural and historical treasures. The island is renowned for its breath-taking mountain ranges and long sandy beaches running down to emerald-blue seas.

This particular geography means that there is a large number of rare flora and fauna species, such as the sea lily on some beaches. In the valleys and semi-mountainous areas, one can find more than 100 different varieties of flowers and plants, while in the high mountains and deep Cretan gorges you may even see the wild ibex goat, Kri -Kri, which is unique to Crete.

Climate Crete enjoys perhaps one of the best Mediterranean climates with over 300 days of sunshine. The light rainy season is normally between November and March. Even in the hot summer months, Crete offers pleasant temperatures due to the sea breezes.

Population Crete has about 634.930 inhabitants, of which over a third, live in the town of Heraklion, which is also the capital of Crete, Chania, Rethymnon then Agios Nikolaos and Ierapetra. The rest of the island is sparsely populated, with large tracts of mountainous areas frequent only by shepherds and small fishing villages.
